DRAFT

FOR INCLUSION IN DCID 11/2

The following stamp may be used at the discretion of the originator of an intelligence document to signify to the recipients of the document that the information has been derived from a sensitive intelligence source which requires specific protection.

"WARNING NOTICE - SENSITIVE SOURCE INFORMATION CONTAINED HEREIN"

The use of this marking will carry over to any other documents that may incorporate the information. If the information is to be used in an official oral briefing, such briefings are to be limited to those individuals where the need-to-know can be clearly demonstrated. It will be the responsibility of the briefer to protect the sensitive source by obscuring the information; for example, round figures will be used instead of exact figures, the time, date and place will be approximated or in some instances left out entirely if it is not essential. Regardless of any other classified or unclassified information on the same subject which may be available, the recipient shall not construe this other information as grounds for extending the dissemination of the document or broadening the disclosure of the information. In addition, this marking is to serve as a guide to disseminators that the information is vital from a source disclosure standpoint and that only those officials shall receive the information who have a clear need-to-know. This marking will be used either alone or supplementary to other control markings to signify that the originator desires special protection for a sensitive source and each recipient department and agency shall insure control measures to severely limit dissemination and disclosure. The information will not be publicly released unless specifically approved by the originator.
